

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A media system including memory to store media information that characterizes the media and a processor configured by the memory to provide a user interface to enable a user to define a media presentation from the media information. The processor is configured by the memory to continually 5 and automatically segue media stream changes among a plurality of the media streams containing the media to present the user defined media presentation.